

FAST Ultrasound

More Information: Blood Flow from a Splenic Injury

Hemorrhage from a splenic injury in the supine patient will preferentially flow cephalad, to the subphrenic space with overflow fluid traveling in a caudal direction to the splenorenal fossa, across the epiploic foramen to Morison's pouch, and ultimately to the pelvis via the right paracolic gutter.